that had always worked satisfactorily, to satisfy the whims or fancies of a very few members of the committee and hence voted everything proposed by them, members of the committee upon resigned, and their places promptly filled by good democrats.

Is this the whole of the un-condition "of politics in Carroll County?"
The truth of the matter is here is nobody "unhappy" very few individuals who have their grip in politics in this county. The people of the county taking the advice of the Convention and General Gordon two years ago, when they were advised to be in charge of their own political affairs and not leave their management to a few courthouse politicians. This is all there is in the political situation here, and

The cow show on the First was a decidedly creditable affair, although not so largely participated by stock-owners as was desired. The average worth of the nine or ten cows on exhibition was thought to be about $100 each. There is a diversity of opinion as to which could have the premium—George W. Miller's two-year-old is a prodigy. Sheriff Hewitt's had the advantage in appearance by reason of age. We hope that similar exhibitions will occur often. Family Fatality.

A remarkable and sad coincidence occurred in the family of Capt. J. P. Moore recently. Last week Mrs. Moore received a telegram stating that her brother had been killed by a railroad accident at Alston, a small town 90 miles south of Spartanburg, S. C. Mrs. Moore started at once to attend the funeral services. On last Friday, during Mrs. Moore's absence Capt. Moore received a telegram stating that his brother had been run over and killed by a railroad train. The Captain started immediately for Spartanburg and passed his wife in Atlanta, who was on her return from the place of her husband's destination. Thus husband and wife each lost a brother by the same means and very nearly at the same time and place.

WRECK ON C. R. & C. R. R.

There was a bad wreck just above Buchanan on last Wednesday morn- ing. As the south bound freight train, number 17, was passing over a trestle just north of Tallapoosa river, the trestle gave way carrying several cars with it. Some of the cars were loaded with oil and it catching fire burned some six boxes, some of them loaded with meat.

One of the most important questions that will come up before the Legisla- ture at its summer session will be the apportionment of the new congression- al districts. Under the late census, Georgia will have eleven representa- tives and this will require a re-district- ing of the entire state.

AN ALLIANCE BANKING COMPANY

Editor Graphic:—According to the dispatches from Kansas, the Alliance is taking steps to put the sub-treasury scheme into practical operation. As the plan implies individual responsibility without asking the national government to stand security, there is no objection to the experiment out of which great good may come. What the farmers in the west will be followed by the farmers in the south, with such changes and limitations as the local conditions suggest. Speaking as one outside of the Alliance, the writer is glad to see the movement. By practice our farmers will become acquainted with the banking system. They will learn what can be
